The portraits of 30 women, each revolutionary in their own way. 30 women who wrote their own destinies and changed the world! Lighthouse keeper, astronaut, empress, animal interpreter, crime miniaturist... whoever they were and wherever they came from, those Brazen ladies were out to tear down prejudice and bring energy and hope.

French broadcaster France Televisions

The highest praise I can give Brazen is that it belongs in most every girl's — and boy's — hands by middle school. The book reminds you that too many great women's stories have been lost to history — and that for the greater good, that must never happen again.

THE WASHINGTON POST

Bagieu's pen transforms these true stories into something that has the tone of a personalized fairy tale. And in the end, this turns out to be just perfect.
